

INDIAN PACIFIC THE EPIC JOURNEY FROM COAST TO COAST.

JOINING THE INDIAN AND PACIFIC OCEANS, THIS TRULY IS ONE OF THE WORLD'S GREAT TRAIN JOURNEYS.

Named after the two great oceans it joins, and symbolised by the magnificent Wedge-tailed Eagle that so often soars above, the mighty Indian Pacific covers 4,352kms between Perth and Sydney.

More than 3 million guests have already enjoyed this epic journey which spans a continent. Travelling the whole distance, over three days and nights, you'll cross through the scenic Avon Valley, East of Perth and into Western Australia's wheat belt before arriving at your first stop in the Golden City of Kalgoorlie. You'll discover the landscape take on a richer hue as the journey moves deeper into red desert country and the ancient Nullarbor, with its landscapes unmarked by the passing millennia.

Arriving in Adelaide you can either choose to break your journey for a few days touring this picturesque city, or continue directly on to Broken Hill with its countless tales of riches won and lost.

From here you'll travel through some of Australia's most productive farming country before the finale to your journey into Sydney via the spectacular Blue Mountains. Naturally, you can also do this journey in reverse – it's just as unforgettable.

Whether your final destination on the Indian Pacific is West to Perth or East to Sydney, you'll have a selection of opportunities to leave the train and take in some of the region's highlights. With so many wonderful sights to enjoy, this isn't just one of the longest train journeys in the world, but also one of the most memorable.
